DEMANDS SCALP OF ROOSEVELT

Senator Dill Offers Resolution in the Senate.

FORMER'S RESIGNATION URGED

Movement in the Senate to Drive Secretary Mellon From Cabinet Is Halted When the McKellar Resolution Is Laid Aside Indefinitely. Charges Made by Dill Against Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Washington, April 1.—Senator Dill (Dem., Wash.) introduced a resolution calling upon President Coolidge to request Theodore Roosevelt's resignation as assistant secretary of the navy.

The resolution charges that Roosevelt was associated with the Sinclair oil companies before his connection with the navy department. It also states that Roosevelt carried the draft of the executive order to the white house, which, when signed by President Harding, permitted the leasing of naval oil reserve land and that he participated in sending armed marines to Teapot Dome to protect the Sinclair lease.

Roosevelt was severely criticised recently before the oil committee by Senator Walsh (Dem., Mont.), the committee prosecutor, and several Democratic senators have declared on the senate floor that the assistant secretary's close relationship with former Secretary Denby should have impelled him to follow his chief into retirement.

Senator Dill, speaking in support of his resolution, said: "I think Colonel Roosevelt is more involved in these leases of naval reserves than ex-Secretary of the Navy Denby ever was. Roosevelt carried the order to the late President Harding transferring the naval reserves from the navy to the interior department and was acting secretary of the navy when marines were ordered to throw out all oil claimants on Teapot Dome. The procedure should have been into the courts and not by this outrageous use of the military forces of the country. His relationship with the oil leases and Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, makes him unfit for the high office he holds. When Denby quit, Roosevelt should have gone."

Move to Oust Mellon Halted. The movement in the senate to drive Secretary of the Treasury Mellon from the president's cabinet was halted in the senate while the committee investigating the internal revenue bureau resumed its examination of tax records of "Mellon companies."

The committee called for definite figures on "lessee depletion" and other allowances granted the Gulf Oil corporation, one of the "Mellon companies," in its tax cases for 1917, 1918 and 1919. The cases brought the corporation credits totaling $3,775,000 for "net excessive payments." The bureau's records of the matter were virtually impounded by the committee in charge of Nelson T. Hartson, solicitor of the bureau, and S. M. Greenidge, an official, under oath as custodians.

Lacking united support among the Democrats and faced with opposition from the regular Republicans, the McKellar resolution to investigate Secretary Mellon's legal fitness for a cabinet position was laid aside indefinitely by the senate. Senator Robinson of Arkansas disclaimed responsibility for the move to have the treasury secretary's business connections inquired into, initiated by Senator McKellar (Dem., Tenn.). There plainly was a difference of opinion among the Democrats as to the expediency of keeping the McKellar resolution ahead of pressing legislation as a subject of senate discussion. Senator Robinson canvassed sentiment on the Democratic side, while Senator Reed (Rep., Pa.) was telling the senate that Mr. Mellon had assumed office after he had been assured by the late Philander C. Knox and other legal authorities that there was no bar.

Would Oust Pacifist Students. Chicago, April 1.—A movement to oust pacifists from the student body of Northwestern university was initiated by world war veterans following a patriotic mass meeting in the university gymnasium. President Walter Dill Scott in a speech placed the university on record against activities of the pacifist students. "The attitude of the university toward us is that we should risk our all in the defense of our nation," President Scott declared in a speech.

FATAL FEUDAL CLASH

One Slain and Eight Others Wounded in a Gun Battle.

Little Rock, Ark., April 1.—One person was slain and eight members of the Van Allen and McCarron families were wounded during renewal of a feud in Lick Creek valley near Booneville, Ark. The McCarrons firing from their house and the Van Allens barricaded behind a wagon on the roadway maintained a constant fire until the last member of both families was wounded.

The clash was precipitated when Sam McCarron, 12, and Roby Van Allen, 13, quarreled at a schoolhouse in the valley, when Roby called Sam's elder sister names. Later, as the Van Allen family drove past the McCarron farm home, someone inside the house opened fire with a shotgun. The Van Allens returned the fire. Women and children joined in the warfare. Wilmoth Van Allen, 3, was killed. Several of the injured may die.

BANDITS ESCAPE WITH $20,000 CASH

Held Up Bank and Rob Saloon-ist at Detroit.

Detroit, April 1.—While one group of four bandits robbed a saloonkeeper of $5,000, another quartet held up a branch of the Commonwealth Federal Savings bank and escaped with $15,000. At the bank one bandit stood guard at the door, another watched George James, bank manager, and a girl employee, and the other two looted the cash drawers and the vault. They fled in an automobile. Walter Baryliski was the victim of the first gang of robbers, who forced him into their car while he was taking $5,000 in cash from a bank to his saloon. After turning over the money, Baryliski was thrown off the car. He received severe cuts and bruises.

CITY OFFICIALS DISTURBED

Would Halt the Importation of Arms by Negroes.

Youngstown, O., April 1.—As a result of the statement by Postmaster B. E. Westwood that 1,000 pistols have been mailed to negroes here since the holidays, Clyde Osborne, city law director, is seeking legal authority to check the importation of pistols by mail.

There is a city ordinance which prohibits sale of dangerous weapons to any person unless he has a permit from the police. The law director hopes to find some legislation which can check the mail order sale. If there is no law under which the city can act, he said he would try to frame a new ordinance which would be effective.

Pamphlets, carrying a list of names purported to be members of the Ku Klux Klan here, were sold on the streets for a dollar a copy. The vendor refused to tell the source of the names or where the booklets were printed. Leaders of the Klan here said they thought the list may have been obtained last fall when the Klan's safe was robbed here.

SINCLAIR, OIL MAN, INDICTED

Charged With Contempt of Senate Investigation.

REFUSED TO ANSWER QUERIES

Legal Struggle Foreseen, Involving the Authority of Congressional Investigating Committees, a Point Never Before Finally Decided by the Courts—Ten Counts in Indictment Returned Against Magnate.

Washington, April 1.—The federal grand jury returned an indictment against Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome naval oil reserve, charging contempt of the senate committee investigating the oil land leases.

Sinclair had refused to answer the committee's questions on the ground that the committee was without constitutional authority to compel a man to divulge his private affairs.

There is involved in the legal fight the important point of authority of congressional investigating committees, a point which never before has been finally decided by the courts. Sinclair must appear voluntarily before the court for arraignment of bail or a warrant will be issued for his arrest.

The indictment specifically charges Sinclair with 10 counts, nine for as many questions which he refused to answer before the committee and the tenth, a general charge that he violated section 102 of the statutes in failing to answer any question.

The indictment was returned before Supreme Court Justice Hitz of the District of Columbia court. It cites legal documents of President Harding transferring the jurisdiction of the naval oil reserves from the navy to the interior department. It also contained copies of the various resolutions passed by the senate empowering the public lands committee to investigate the leases, and section 102 of the revised statutes, which states that any witness failing to answer a question before a congressional investigating committee can be indicted by the grand jury for contempt.

The questions which Sinclair refused to answer before the senate oil committee and on which his indictment was based were put by Senator Walsh of Montana. Walsh asked Sinclair about the story that he had given Will Hays 75,000 shares of oil stock for the Republican campaign deficit; when Sinclair had first talked to Fall about the leases; if he had transferred a large sum of money from New York to Washington, as rumored, in connection with slush fund reports; about his reported payment of $250,000 to Frank G. Bonfile and J. Leo Stack of Denver for claims to Teapot Dome and about a reported contract between the Mammoth Oil company and the Pioneer Oil company in connection with the Teapot lease. Sinclair refused to answer any of them—not on the ground that it would incriminate him, but his counsel had advised him not to.

Lima, O., April 1.—Slight improvement is reported in the condition of Maxine Rawson, 4, whose body slowly has been going through a process similar to petrification, according to attending physicians. Decomposed Body Identified.

Sidney, O., April 1.—A decomposed body identified as that of Dr. Hiram Good, alleged murderer, was found floating in Loraine reservoir. The body had a gunshot wound in the right breast. These Fords will be assembled in Germany and will be sold at the price of 1,800 marks, or $450, on the installment plan.

WHEELER SEEKS INFORMATION

Daughterly Committee to Continue Inquiry for a Time.

TO PROBE AIRCRAFT FRAUDS

Alleged Whisky Deals and Reported Sale of Pardons by Friends of Former Attorney General to Be Investigated—Committee Decides to Hold Means In Attendance—Witness In Oil Probe Not Located.

Washington, April 1.—Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) announced that the senate committee investigating former Attorney General Daugherty had decided to continue the inquiry for a time at least.

Wheeler said the committee is seeking information on four points: alleged non-prosecution of aircraft frauds in which it was said $10,000,000 were paid out illegally to four great airplane concerns and approximately one billion dollars wasted on a program that failed to produce a single fighting plane for the American armies in France; the alleged nationwide whisky ring "deals," in which it was charged that at least $200,000 found its way in bribes to persons close to the former attorney general; alleged sale of pardons by friends of Daugherty; and alleged official connivance in the illegal transportation of films of the Carpenter-Dempsey fight.

Committee members announced they intended to hold Gaston B. Means, former department of justice investigator, in attendance under a senate subpoena, in spite of the issuance of a bench warrant by the federal court at New York ordering Means' return there to answer charges of conspiracy. The committee's immediate objective when it resumes hearings will be to clear up the facts as to the department of justice's prosecution of war frauds and anti-trust cases.

The senate oil committee was informed of the failure of subpoena servers to locate William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the republican national committee's finance committee. Thompson was among the witnesses listed to appear this week in regard to stories of campaign contributions by oil interests. His home is in New York. George White of Ohio, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, who also is under subpoena, was granted a week's delay on his plea of important business engagements.

Today the committee resumed its hearings with R. H. Wilson, once candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma, on the stand. With W. L. Kistler, an oil promoter of Tulsa, Mr. Wilson was questioned regarding the connection prominent oil men had with state and national politics.

Warehousing space to handle the crop of approximately 6,000 growers of the Miami valley tobacco section has been provided for largely during the last month. Tobacco is already coming in from growers for preparation for sale. The space provided up to the latter part of February will accommodate nearly 26,000 cases of tobacco. The pooling plan of sale will be used by the Farm Bureau association through agreement with growers. Advance payments will be made to growers, and periodical payments will be made throughout the year, with final settlement when all tobacco is sold.

Hospital Burned.

HAS LONG LEAD

United States Has Four-fifths of the World's Motor Cars.

Washington, April 1.—The department of commerce has issued a report showing the worldwide use of the automobile. The report shows that the United States has a tremendous lead over all of the remainder of the world in the number of automobiles in operation. The report says:

"There were in operation in the entire world on Jan. 1, 1924, approximately 18,100,000 passenger cars and motor trucks and 1,075,000 motorcycles, calculated on the basis of a compilation made by the automotive division.

"The world's automotive population at the end of 1923 included 15,763,281 passenger cars, 2,345,850 trucks and 1,077,935 motorcycles. The total of the three groups was 19,187,066.

"In the United States the approximate total of cars and trucks was 15,280,000, and of motorcycles 172,000. The more detailed figures are as follows: Passenger cars, 13,484,939; trucks, 1,796,356; motorcycles, 171,558.

"The United States has 80 per cent of all the passenger cars, trucks and motorcycles in the world. Out of every six passenger cars and trucks in the world the United States has five. In the world there are more than six times as many passenger cars as trucks. In the United States this ratio is 7.5 to 1."

City Files Protest.

Columbus, April 1.—The city of Akron, through its law director, H. M. Hagelbarger, filed a protest with the state public utilities commission against the commission assuming jurisdiction over the application of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company for certificates to operate bus routes supplemental to its streetcar service within the Akron city limits. "The city contends that the bus lines are operating under a city ordinance and that the utilities commission is without jurisdiction to regulate bus lines within the corporation. The commission's jurisdiction over any bus lines within the city also is challenged.

ATTACKED BY JOHNSON

Administration Attacked by Political Expediency, He Says.

Chicago, April 1.—The Republican administration was again attacked by Senator Hiram Johnson, who returned here from South Dakota. He said: "The manner of the dismissal of Daugherty demonstrates that the administration is actuated in the present crisis not by a desire to clean up the mess disclosed at Washington, but wholly by political expediency."

Johnson said the effort of certain Republicans to enter Senator La Follette as a presidential candidate in the California primaries was "another of those practical jokes which the Chicago managers have been playing in the various primary states." "The purpose, he said, was the same as that which inspired the Coolidge managers in North Dakota to sponsor the 'licker campaign,' namely, 'to confuse the voters in the primary.' Primaries will be held in Michigan and Illinois and Nebraska April 8.

Magee has announced that his platform will call for better roads, a better road law, sufficient school funds to maintain a standard of education commensurate with the needs of all pupils in Ohio, and economy in state government.

Girl's Body Growing Rigid.

Lima, O., April 1.—Slight improvement is reported in the condition of Maxine Rawson, 4, whose body slowly has been going through a process similar to petrification, according to attending physicians. Thirteen physicians have been unable to diagnose the strange disease, which was noticed first about two years ago. Since that time various portions of her body have become rigid, until the stiffening process has reached her waist.

Alcohol Kills Seven.

Toledo, April 1.—Seven men died here from drinking alcoholic preparations. One man died alone in his room, where he was found, and the others were found by the clerk of the Workmen's hotel. Another was found in a rooming house. All six died in a hospital. The dead are: David Blue, 52; William Schultz, 42; Thomas Kelly, 50; Milton French, 42; Barney Keyes, 37; Peter Miller, 45, and William Wallace, 35.

No Statewide Probe, Crabbe Says.

Columbus, April 1.—Attorney General Crabbe announced that his department will make no statewide investigation of irregularities and law violations in liquor law courts conducted by mayors and justices of the peace. "I do not intend to make a general investigation," said Crabbe. "Wherever the county prosecutor asks the aid of this department, however, we will co-operate in every way."

Decomposed Body Identified.

Sidney, O., April 1.—A decomposed body identified as that of Dr. Hiram Good, alleged murderer, was found floating in Loraine reservoir. The body had a gunshot wound in the right breast. Dr. Good had been wanted by Sidney police since Oct. 15, 1923, in connection with the murder of Jesse Finck on the Good farm near Houston. Starling Good, a son, identified the body.

Mysterious Explosion.

New Lexington, O., April 1.—Officials began an investigation of a mysterious explosion on a hill near the center of Shawnee, which caused damage estimated at $10,000 to business places in the village. Store fronts were crushed by the explosion, which was felt within a 40-mile radius.

Public Meetings Banned.

Nelsonville, O., April 1.—Dr. F. J. Crosbie, Perry county health commissioner, ordered all railroad employees working out of Corning, Perry county, to be vaccinated, due to the discovery of a number of cases of smallpox. The Corning schools are closed and all public meetings banned.

Fords Invade Germany.

Berlin, April 1.—Two ship loads of Ford automobiles have arrived at Hamburg and are awaiting permission to enter Germany. This is the beginning of the invasion of Germany by American automobile manufacturers. The invasion, it is reported, to extend to all of central Europe. These Fords will be assembled in Germany and will be sold at the price of 1,800 marks, or $450, on the installment plan.

WHEELER SEEKS INFORMATION

Daugherty Committee to Continue Inquiry for a Time.

TO PROBE AIRCRAFT FRAUDS

Alleged Whisky Deals and Reported Sale of Pardons by Friends of Former Attorney General to Be Investigated—Committee Decides to Hold Means in Attendance—Witness in Oil Probe Not Located.

Washington, April 1.—Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) announced that the senate committee investigating former Attorney General Daugherty had decided to continue the inquiry for a time at least.

Wheeler said the committee is seeking information on four points: alleged non-prosecution of aircraft frauds in which it was said $10,000,000 were paid out illegally to four great airplane concerns and approximately one billion dollars wasted on a program that failed to produce a single fighting plane for the American army in France; the alleged nationwide whisky ring "deals," in which it was charged that at least $200,000 found its way in bribes to persons close to the former attorney general; alleged sale of pardons by friends of Daugherty; and alleged official connivance in the illegal transportation of films of the Carpenter-Dempsey fight.

Committee members announced they intended to hold Gaston B. Means, former department of justice investigator, in attendance under a senate subpoena, in spite of the issuance of a bench warrant by the federal court at New York ordering Means' return there to answer charges of conspiracy. The committee's immediate objective when it resumes hearings will be to clear up the facts as to the department of justice's prosecution of war frauds and anti-trust cases.

The senate oil committee was informed of the failure of subpoena servers to locate William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the republican national committee's finance committee. Thompson was among the witnesses listed to appear this week in regard to stories of campaign contributions by oil interests. His home is in New York. George White of Ohio, former chairman of the Democratic national committee, who also is under subpoena, was granted a week's delay on his plea of important business engagements.

Today the committee resumed its hearings with R. H. Wilson, once candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma, on the stand. With W. L. Kistler, an oil promoter of Tulsa, Mr. Wilson was questioned regarding the connection prominent oil men had with state and national politics.

TOBACCO COMING IN

Warehousing Space Provided For Miami Valley Growers.

Dayton, O., April 1.—The most recently formed large co-operative marketing group, the Miami Valley Tobacco Growers' association, is getting under way rapidly. Warehousing space to handle the crop of approximately 6,000 growers of the Miami valley tobacco section has been provided for largely during the last month. Tobacco is already coming in from growers for preparation for sale. The space provided up to the latter part of February will accommodate nearly 36,000 cases of tobacco. The pooling plan of sale will be used by the Farm Bureau association through agreement with growers. Advance payments will be made to growers, and periodical payments will be made throughout the year, with final settlement when all tobacco is sold.

Hospital Burned.

Detroit, April 1.—Three persons were killed when fire, believed caused by a defective chimney, destroyed the Negaunee hospital at Negaunee, Mich. Alex. Martinson, 21, night orderly, gave his life vainly in trying to save Mrs. Richard Sjolund, 45, mother of eight children, and Jack Eddy, 53, of Negaunee.

Greer Trial Date Set.

Los Angeles, April 1.—Horace A. Greer, former chauffeur for Mabel Normand, film star, entered a plea of not guilty here to charges of attacking Courtland S. Dines of Denver during a New Year party at Dines' Los Angeles apartment. Superior Judge Crall set Greer's trial for April 17.

HAS LONG LEAD

United States Has Four-fifths of the World's Motor Cars.

Washington, April 1.—The department of commerce has issued a report showing the worldwide use of the automobile. The report shows that the United States has a tremendous lead over all of the remainder of the world in the number of automobiles in operation. The report says:

"There were in operation in the entire world on Jan. 1, 1924, approximately 18,100,000 passenger cars and motor trucks and 1,075,000 motorcycles, calculated on the basis of a compilation made by the automotive division.

"The world's automotive population at the end of 1923 included 15,763,281 passenger cars, 2,345,850 trucks and 1,077,935 motorcycles. The total of the three groups was 19,187,066.

"In the United States the approximate total of cars and trucks was 15,230,000, and of motorcycles 172,000. The more detailed figures are as follows: Passenger cars, 13,484,939; trucks, 1,796,356; motorcycles, 171,568.

"The United States has 80 per cent of all the passenger cars, trucks and motorcycles in the world. Out of every six passenger cars and trucks in the world the United States has five. In the world there are more than six times as many passenger cars as trucks. In the United States this ratio is 7.5 to 1."

City Files Protest.

Columbus, April 1.—The city of Akron, through its law director, H. M. Hagleberger, filed a protest with the state public utilities commission against the commission assuming jurisdiction over the application of the Northern Ohio Traction and Light company for certificates to operate bus routes supplemental to its street-car service within the Akron city limits. "The city contends that the bus lines are operating under a city ordinance and that the utilities commission is without jurisdiction to regulate bus lines within the corporation. The commission's jurisdiction over any bus lines within the city also is challenged."

ATTACKED BY JOHNSON

Administration Attacked by Political Expediency, He Says.

Chicago, April 1.—The Republican administration was again attacked by Senator Hiram Johnson, who returned here from South Dakota. He said: "The manner of the dismissal of Daugherty demonstrates that the administration is actuated in the present crisis not by a desire to clean up the mess disclosed at Washington, but wholly by political expediency." Johnson said the effort of certain Republicans to enter Senator La Follette as a presidential candidate in the California primaries was "another of these practical jokes which the Chicago managers have been playing in the various primary states." The purpose, he said, was the same as that which "inspired the Coolidge managers in North Dakota to sponsor the sticker campaign," namely, "to capture the voters in the primary."

Primaries will be held in Michigan, Illinois and Nebraska April 8.

BARRERE & NICKER))

Rich Cape and Frock for Dainty Little Miss

This darling frock for little sister is designed in radium silk of soft old gold color, trimmed with white and accompanied by winsome little cape that matches.

White Satin Blouses Now Bidding for Favor

Now that black satin has come into especial favor for dresses and some are shown with the white vests, it seems opportune for the advent of the white satin blouse. Undoubtedly it will have many uses in the wardrobe. Most successful among these is the blouse which extends over the hips in usual fashion, but cut into vest points at the front and provided with pockets or at least one for the ubiquitous watch fob. Noteworthy in a group of these models seen recently was one with trimming in scroll embroidery done in black floss on the white satin. The pockets covered with the design and a panel of it in the front where it would be effective with a suit or coat.

Costume blouses are frequently of black satin with trimming motifs of Chinese inspiration lending color to the general effect of the Oriental cut. These are in evidence in the collections in Paris and are perhaps the newest thing that the display of spring blouses has to offer. Blues and pinks are enriched with motifs in silver and gold among the lighter color schemes. Paris also offers some of the shorter flit pointed blouses in black satin richly embroidered.

Georgette blouses have manners of their own in trimming and decoration suitable to the fragile or rather sheer fabric, for in reality georgette is extremely durable. Fine tucks and the use of platings are both part of the designer's way of treating them. In a blouse of salmon pink georgette, for instance, one finds a deep, oblong inset of fine tucks outlined with fagoting and a band of embroidery at the bottom of the tucks, which are perpendicular in direction. With so much elaboration above the hip pockets are simple slits with a narrow, straight edge of embroidery.

Models for Young Ladies Are Chic and Snappy

This season's styles are particularly happy in their models for misses. The designs are chic and snappy, the materials charming and comfortable, the colors refreshingly pretty. There have been seasons when the young woman just out, or she that was just to make her debut, was either overelaborate or stupidly childish and unattractive in her dress.

The tendency of fond parents to bestow all at once the ornaments a girl may require one at a time, or to keep her as long as possible in the junior class, has transgressed, at times, the rules of taste and fine proportion in the fashions designed for young women. But these rules have become standardized and are now representing the best talents of the leading artists of Paris.

There is an obvious compensating joy in their creating, and most interesting, engaging things are shown in the new models; things lovely and expressive of youth in their design and colors. Many of the new ideas intended for young women are equally good for women at large, and there is no monopoly on the palette of colors from which they are developed.

Desk Accessories

The busy woman with much correspondence to care for will rejoice in the new accessories for her desk. Large envelopes of colored leather are plainly stamped in gold, "Paid," "Unpaid," "Answered," "Unanswered," etc. Each envelope is made of a different colored leather, such as rose, blue or tan, so that the search for the missing letter or unpaid bill is greatly facilitated.

Opals Are Chic

People evidently are losing their superstition about opals. At any rate, long chains of round, milky opals are considered chic. The opals are alternated with rose quartz or black onyx.

Hand Bag of Moire

The little moire hand bag is more and more favored. Its latest development is a handsome medallion at the point in the center of the bag.

How Gasoline Destroys.
The bureau of biological survey says that practically all insect life obtains its supply of oxygen through little holes in the body. When such oily substances as gasoline come in direct contact with these pests it is impossible for them to breathe, and death shortly ensues.

Rule to Attain Old Age.
Sir George Reid said: "I have aimed at health and happiness, and when confronted by a formidable obstacle I have first tried to knock it over; failing in this, to get around it; if not to get under it; and if these maneuvers failed I have been content to lie down in its grateful shade, lauding it as a beautiful blessing in disguise."

FIND SITE OF IDAHO'S FIRST TRADING POST

Blind Indian Leads Way to Old Settlement.

Missoula, Mont.—The site of a trading post which, 500 miles inland from the Pacific ocean, was founded in 1807, at virtually the same time that John Jacob Astor was establishing his post at the mouth of the Columbia river, has been found by Duncan McDonald of Dixon, Mont., son of an early Hudson's Bay company factor. A blind Indian was McDonald's guide.

A heap of stones and ashes on the shore of Lake Pen d'Oreille in northern Idaho is all that is left of the long abandoned and cabins built by David Thompson in 1807.

Thompson was an employee of the Hudson's Bay company in eastern Canada when Astor determined to send his expedition by boat around Cape Horn. Offered employment by Astor, Thompson decided instead to head an expedition of his own to cross the continent and establish a post at the mouth of the Columbia before Astor's could round the Horn.

But Thompson's expedition was forced by hostile Indians to camp for a winter north of what is now the city of Spokane, and the Thompson party arrived at the mouth of the Columbia to find Astor's men building their cabins.

Thompson returned to the Rocky mountain region and built his fur-trading posts on Lake Pen d'Oreille, in what has become northern Idaho, on Flathead lake, in what is now western Montana, and near the present site of the city of Missoula.

The recent expedition, which found the remains of the Lake Pen d'Oreille post, designated by Thompson in his diaries as "Kullyspell house," was led by McDonald, accompanied by the blind Indian from the Flathead reservation known as Old Aleck, who, in his boyhood, had seen standing the old stone chimney of Kullyspell house.

McDonald said the principal importance attaching to the discovery was that it fixed the spot of Idaho's first trading post.

Temple of Golden Calf Is Found by Explorers

Philadelphia.—The temple of the golden calf, mentioned in the Old Testament, has been found by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania museum and the British museum near Ur of the Chaldees, Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the university museum believes. He expressed the belief that Nebuchadnezzar's temple, which the expedition has uncovered, is identical with the golden calf temple.

The Bible story of this temple, in the Book of Daniel, relates how three Israelite brothers, refusing to worship the golden image of a calf, erected by King Nebuchadnezzar, were cast into a fiery furnace, but emerged unharmed. From photographs of the excavated temple and other data recently received from the expedition, Doctor Gordon deduces that this temple is the one mentioned in the Bible.

Among the pictures are some which Doctor Gordon believes show drain pipes which were used to carry off the blood of animals sacrificed before the golden image.

Record Prices Paid for Old Coins in New York

New York.—Record prices for United States coins were obtained recently at a sale that yielded $6,708 for 198 items in the galleries of the American Art association for the account of the estate of a city collector. Elmer Sears paid $140 for a 1797 eagle with four stars on the right, $110 for 11 gold dollars from the Dahlonega mint from 1849 to 1869 and $108 for proof sets coined in 1844.

Henry Chapman gave $280 for an eagle, 1798 stamped over 1797; $145 for a half-eagle of 1833, $120 for a perfect proof of the rare gold dollar of 1875, $125 for a 1794 silver dollar, $200 and $210 for two brilliant proofs of 1838 silver dollars with flying eagle. A half-eagle of 1797 with 16 stars was sold to Cuttag Bros. for $470.

Egyptian Says King Tut Died From Tuberculosis

New York.—This piece of news is more than 3,000 years old, but it's new stuff around here.

Tutankhamen, now being dug up at Luxor, died of consumption.

Instead of being a robust, hairy-chested, caveman sort of person, he was a frail, stoop-shouldered and sickly youth, according to Bishara Nahas, Egyptian author, who had an inside view of Tut's tomb and is here lecturing about it.

British Cut Insulin Cost

London.—The finance committee of Middlesex hospital and Medical school states that the cost of preparing insulin has been reduced by a new process. Insulin is used in combating diabetes.

Longest Underground Phone Line in World

Hamburg.—The task of laying an underground telephone cable from Hamburg to Munich, 857 miles, was completed recently. It is claimed this is the longest underground telephone line in the world.

Joy of Going to Work and Returning Home

From the time I was six years old and started out to school until the time when I got married and started keeping house, it was part of my routine to get up and get dressed, eat breakfast and go somewhere in the early morning. The two years before I married Bill I walked to the schoolhouse where I taught every day, rain or shine, hail or snow.

And many a morning since I've been married have I wished, when I rose, that I had to get dressed and hurry and walk off somewhere, past the farm and the schoolhouse, a couple of miles or so, to my work. For the love of the outdoors, and the meeting it in all weathers is in my blood, and will never be wiped out. Yet many days my duties keep me in the house from dawn till dark, and, in spite of an honest effort to get out, the days sometimes slip by one after the other and I am scarcely out of doors, with all this open country around me.

I'm not willing to admit that there are any disadvantages in being married, but if I did admit one, it would be this—that the wife and mother rises in the midst of her work—her family and her duties are upon her often before the clothes are on her back—and she retires also in the midst of it, after taking off, at bedtime, the very apron that she tied about her waist before breakfast.

It's nice to go to work—to get up and dress and go out of doors for a brisk walk in the morning freshness, and to come home again in the fall of dusk to lighted lamps and a singling kettle.

But then, if mother wasn't home to do those breakfast dishes, and wasn't there to put the kettle on, perhaps the rest of the world couldn't have the joy of going to work and coming home again, and better for some of us to have it than none of us at all, writes Margaret W. Jackson, in Farm Life.

How Gasoline Destroys.
The bureau of biological survey says that practically all insect life obtains its supply of oxygen through little holes in the body. When such oily substances as gasoline come in direct contact with these pests it is impossible for them to breathe, and death shortly ensues.

Rule to Attain Old Age.
Sir George Reid said: "I have aimed at health and happiness, and when confronted by a formidable obstacle I have first tried to knock it over; failing in this, to get around it; if not to get under it; and if these maneuvers failed I have been content to lie down in its grateful shade, lauding it as a beautiful blessing in disguise."

FIND SITE OF IDAHO'S FIRST TRADING POST

Blind Indian Leads Way to Old Settlement.
Missoula, Mont.—The site of a trading post which, 500 miles inland from the Pacific ocean, was founded in 1807, at virtually the same time that John Jacob Astor was establishing his post at the mouth of the Columbia river, has been found by Duncan McDonald of Dixon, Mont., son of an early Hudson's Bay company factor. A blind Indian was McDonald's guide.
A heap of stones and ashes on the shore of Lake Pen d'Oreille in northern Idaho is all that is left of the log barricades and cabins built by David Thompson in 1807.
Thompson was an employee of the Hudson's Bay company in eastern Canada when Astor determined to send his expedition by boat around Cape Horn. Offered employment by Astor, Thompson decided instead to head an expedition of his own to cross the continent and establish a post at the mouth of the Columbia before Astor's could round the Horn.
But Thompson's expedition was forced by hostile Indians to camp for a winter north of what is now the city of Spokane, and the Thompson party arrived at the mouth of the Columbia to find Astor's men building their cabins.
Thompson returned to the Rocky mountain region and built his fur-trading posts on Lake Pen d'Oreille, in what has become northern Idaho, on Flathead lake, in what is now western Montana, and near the present site of the city of Missoula.
The recent expedition, which found the remains of the Lake Pen d'Oreille post, designated by Thompson in his diaries as "Kullyspell house," was led by McDonald, accompanied by the blind Indian from the Flathead reservation known as Old Aleck, who, in his boyhood, had seen standing the old stone chimney of Kullyspell house.
McDonald said the principal importance attaching to the discovery was that it fixed the spot of Idaho's first trading post.

Temple of Golden Calf Is Found by Explorers
Philadelphia.—The temple of the golden calf, mentioned in the Old Testament, has been found by the joint expedition of the University of Pennsylvania museum and the British museum near Ur of the Chaldees, Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the university museum believes. He expresses the belief that Nebuchadnezzar's temple, which the expedition has uncovered, is identical with the golden calf temple.
The Bible story of this temple, in the Book of Daniel, relates how three Israelite brothers, refusing to worship the golden image of a calf, erected by King Nebuchadnezzar, were cast into a fiery furnace, but emerged unharmed. From photographs of the excavated temple and other data recently received from the expedition, Doctor Gordon deduces that this temple is the one mentioned in the Bible.
Among the pictures are some which Doctor Gordon believes show drain pipes which were used to carry off the blood of animals sacrificed before the golden image.

Record Prices Paid for Old Coins in New York
New York.—Record prices for United States coins were obtained recently at a sale that yielded $6,708 for 198 items in the galleries of the American Art association for the account of the estate of a city collector. Elmer Sears paid $140 for a 1797 eagle with four stars on the right, $110 for 11 gold dollars from the Dahlonega mint from 1849 to 1860 and $108 for proof sets coined in 1844.
Henry Chapman gave $280 for an eagle, 1798 stamped over 1797; $145 for a half-eagle of 1833, $120 for a perfect proof of the rare gold dollar of 1875, $125 for a 1794 silver dollar, $200 and $210 for two brilliant proofs of 1838 silver dollars with flying eagle. A half-eagle of 1797 with 16 stars was sold to Cuttag Bros. for $470.

Tutankhamen, now being dug up at Luxor, died of consumption.
Instead of being a robust, hairy-chested, caveman sort of person, he was a frail, stoop-shouldered and sickly youth, according to Bishara Nahas Egyptian author, who had an inside view of Tut's tomb and is here lecturing about it.

Joy of Going to Work and Returning Home
From the time I was six years old and started out to school until the time when I got married and started keeping house, it was part of my routine to get up and get dressed, eat breakfast and go somewhere in the early morning. The two years before I married Bill I walked to the schoolhouse where I taught every day, rain or shine, hail or snow.
And many a morning since I've been married have I wished, when I rose, that I had to get dressed and hurry and walk off somewhere, past the farm and the schoolhouse, a couple of miles or so, to my work. For the love of the outdoors, and the meeting it in all weathers is in my blood, and will never be wiped out. Yet many days my duties keep me in the house from dawn till dark, and, in spite of an honest effort to get out, the days sometimes slip by one after the other and I am scarcely out of doors, with all this open country around me.

Fire Test for Carpets.

An old way of testing carpets to see if it is a true Persian product is in vogue in Persia. A piece of red-hot charcoal is dropped upon it, which leaves a round singed spot. If the carpet is of the first quality the singed wool can be brushed off with the hand without leaving a trace of the burn discernible.

It Takes More Than
Cleverness to Succeed

Success is not easy to define. It may mean the utmost development of one's talents and capacities. It may mean the attainment of specific ends and the achievement of specific tasks. Not uncommonly it means simply acquisition—the collection of property and the gathering of riches or the gaining of some other prominence.

Frequently when we speak of success we have in mind the success of a man of business who has climbed to a position of eminence and responsibility and who has as a consequence come into the possession of some measure of wealth.

Pluck is an element of success which may be possessed to a remarkable degree by one whose responses to a lot of puzzling questions might even put him in the moron class. The same is true of the element of perseverance which explains why a good many plodding workers finally get ahead in the world. Perseverance implies patience and patience is not much of an asset when it comes to making instantaneous replies to a stop-watch questionnaire. In the same category of qualities that are helpful in pushing to the front is tact, and tact has no quotient in the unintelligent tests. About all that these tests reveal is the relative degree of one's cleverness, and it takes a whole lot besides cleverness to succeed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Oldest Bird Drawings
Found in Spanish Cities

The oldest known figures of birds were discovered a few years ago on the walls of some of the limestone caverns in southern Spain, the work of men of the Stone age who lived in these shelters some 25,000 years ago. There are, among the drawings some obvious flamingos and others that may be geese or ducks. In the new world the ancient Mayas of Central America had a very highly developed civilization when the white men arrived and had reached a high pitch of skill in drawing and carving in wood or stone. Some of their figures of the great horned owl are remarkably skillful and lifelike.

The Egyptians, in their hieroglyphic writing, used many figures of birds that were familiar to them. These figures were, of course, much conventionalized, but many can be identified. Some of these are the vulture, swallow, sparrow, sparrow hawk, pintail duck, this—all familiar species in the Nile delta to this day.—Detroit News.

Submarine Thawing

The use of electricity for thawing frozen water pipes in city houses is no longer uncommon, but an unusual undertaking in this relation was the application not so long ago of the process to a six-inch submarine main, 1,700 feet in length, connecting North Brother Island with New York city. When an ordinary water pipe is to be thawed both ends are cut and the passage of a comparatively small electric current through the resistant pipe metal generates sufficient heat to melt the ice in the pipe. Although the same general plan was followed with the frozen submarine main, the conditions were so difficult that it took five days of applying powerful electric currents and of a constant pumping with a pressure of eighty pounds to do the work.

She Was an Expert

"Julia, do you know what love is?" The lovesick man put the question in an intense voice.
"Yes," replied the fair maid, firmly.
"But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love undying as the sun, as all-pervading as the air, as wonderful and sparkling as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?"
In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.
"Have I?" she presently murmured, staring thoughtfully into the glowing fire. "If you will come up into our box-room I can show you a trunk full of letters and three albums full of photographs, and in my jewel case are several engagement rings."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Big Supply of Admirals

Much prestige attaches to high positions in France and there is some comment on a peculiar situation that has developed under the reduction of naval armament, France having seven first-class battleships, but eighty-six admirals and rear admirals on the active list for duty. The only situation like it is in Mexico, says the Ohio State Journal, where in the present rebellion six generals were assigned to a command of seven hundred soldiers, a reserve force that was moving toward the battle ground, but France hopes to work her way out of her situation with no loss of dignity.

Furriner, Probably

A traveler in the Northwest eyed his seatmate for a while and then asked where he was from.
"Saskatchewan."
"What's that, podner?"
"Saskatchewan."
The interlocutor pondered over this for a while and then suggested:
"You no spik Inglis?"

Might Help Some

"You are the sixth girl," a widower complained, "to whom I have proposed without avail."
"Well," the girl answered, "maybe if you wear one when making your seventh you'll have better luck."

Something for a trellis—good!

Legend of the Minotaur;
Beast Devoured Victims

About the best-known instance of the labyrinth in mythology is the story of the minotaur. According to this legend, a skillful workman, Daedalus, made for King Minos a labyrinth, in the center of which the minotaur, a horrible beast, was placed.

Those who entered this maze could not find their way out again and ultimately became the prey of the monster. Seven youths and seven maidens, it is said, were sent regularly by the Athenians as tribute to the minotaur until Theseus slew the beast and escaped out of the labyrinth by the help of the clew which Ariadne had given him.

The "labyrinth" is derived from certain terms applied to the mines of old Greece, especially those of Thrace and the Aegean islands. These mines were probably first worked by the Phoenician traders. The superstitious natives regarded the underground passages with fear and awe.

To the natural fear of darkness was added the tendency of the uneducated to cloak with mystery the power of superior knowledge to obtain riches from the earth. These people believed that the god of riches of the lower world was also the god of death and keeper of the dead.—Detroit News.

Skates of Sheep Shanks

Until fifty years ago a pair of skates was within the reach of every Dutchman who, however poor, did not want to disclose his poverty. It meant only the strapping of two sheep shanks to his shoes and then he was ready for the winter's marketing or the hockey game.

Slaughter houses and butcher shops in Holland always prepared for the winter bone demand by stocking up heavily with the coveted shanks. The ingenious Hollanders, who improvised these skates in the long, long ago, were soon imitated, and shortly afterward London, Berlin, Paris, St. Petersburg and all parts of the continent which went in for winter sports, were gliding over the ice on the bones of sheep.

With the introduction of the steel skate, however, the sheep shank was practically abolished. In some of the smaller villages of the Netherlands, however, and on rare occasions even in Amsterdam, the crude bone skate is seen.—Detroit News.

Wanted to Be Nice

A Chicago man visiting London was invited to a ball where everybody except himself talked with an exceedingly broad "a." The accent was puzzling to his Chicago ears, but he did his best.

He danced with the wife of his host. The latter spoke with an especially broad accent; also she ran somewhat to flesh. When they had finished the round of the floor she was panting in a repressed and well-bred way.
"Shall we try another whirly?" inquired the Chicago man.
"Not now," she said; "I'm darned out."

"Oh, no," said the American, gallantly; "not darn stout—just nice and plump, ma'am."

Playing Safe

The day before she was to be married the old negro servant went to her mistress and handed her a life insurance policy.

"Why do you want me to keep it? I thought you were going to get married," said the mistress.

"So I is, mistress, but do you suppose I want that strange nigger to know Ah got my life insured?"

AMUSEMENTS

AMUSEMENTS—
Opening a two day engagement at the Metropolitan theater yesterday, "The Man Life Passed by," Victor Schertzinger's new Metro production, revealed itself as an intriguing photoplay bound to please every fan. It tells a dramatic story, written by Mr. Schertzinger with Winifred Dunn, who did the continuity, and it is rich in elements of popular appeal. It seeks only to entertaining and succeeds admirably.

An excellent cast that has Percy Marmont, Jane and Eva Novak in sister roles, Cullen Landis, Lydia Knott and Hobart Bosworth, make very real this story of a man who finally rises triumphant, thru the help of the daughter of his enemy, over misfortunes that nearly downed him. The absorbing action, interspersed with fights and thrills, has many gripping dramatic scenes.
Chester A. Lyons was photographer and J. J. Hughes art director. Mr. Schertzinger directed the picture with the skill that he did "Long Live the King." It has been given a sumptuous production by Metro.

It Takes More Than
Cleverness to Succeed

Success is not easy to define. It may mean the utmost development of one's talents and capacities. It may mean the attainment of specific ends and the achievement of specific tasks. Not uncommonly it means simply acquisition—the collection of property and the gathering of riches or the gaining of some other prominence.

Frequently when we speak of success we have in mind the success of a man of business who has climbed to a position of eminence and responsibility and who has as a consequence come into the possession of some measure of wealth.

Pluck is an element of success which may be possessed to a remarkable degree by one whose responses to a lot of puzzling questions might even put him in the moron class. The same is true of the element of perseverance which explains why a good many plodding workers finally get ahead in the world. Perseverance implies patience and patience is not much of an asset when it comes to making instantaneous replies to a stop-watch questionnaire. In the same category of qualities that are helpful in pushing to the front is tact, and tact has no quotient in the unintelligent tests. About all that these tests reveal is the relative degree of one's cleverness, and it takes a whole lot besides cleverness to succeed.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Oldest Bird Drawings
Found in Spanish Cities

The oldest known figures of birds were discovered a few years ago on the walls of some of the limestone caverns in southern Spain, the work of men of the Stone age who lived in these shelters some 25,000 years ago. There are, among the drawings some obvious flamingos and others that may be geese or ducks. In the new world the ancient Mayas of Central America had a very highly developed civilization when the white men arrived and had reached a high pitch of skill in drawing and carving in wood or stone. Some of their figures of the great horned owl are remarkably skillful and lifelike.

The Egyptians, in their hieroglyphic writing, used many figures of birds that were familiar to them. These figures were, of course, much conventionalized, but many can be identified. Some of these are the vulture, swallow, sparrow, sparrow hawk, pintail duck, ibis—all familiar species in the Nile delta to this day.—Detroit News.

Submarine Thawing

The use of electricity for thawing frozen water pipes in city houses is no longer uncommon, but an unusual undertaking in this relation was the application not so long ago of the process to a six-inch submarine main, 1,700 feet in length, connecting North Brother Island with New York city. When an ordinary water pipe is to be thawed both ends are cut and the passage of a comparatively small electric current through the resistant pipe metal generates sufficient heat to melt the ice in the pipe. Although the same general plan was followed with the frozen submarine main, all the conditions were so difficult that it took five days of applying powerful electric currents and of a constant pumping with a pressure of eighty pounds to do the work.

She Was an Expert

"Julia, do you know what love is?" The lovesick man put the question in an intense voice.
"Yes," replied the fair maid, firmly.
"But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love undying as the sun, as all-pervading as the air, as wonderful and sparkling as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?"
In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.
"Have I?" she presently murmured, staring thoughtfully into the glowing fire. "If you will come up into our box-room I can show you a trunk full of letters and three albums full of photographs, and in my jewel case are several engagement rings."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Big Supply of Admirals

Much prestige attaches to high positions in France and there is much comment on a peculiar situation that has developed under the reduction of naval armament. France having seven first-class battleships, but eighty-six admirals and rear admirals on the active list for duty. The only situation like it is in Mexico, says the Ohio State Journal, where in the present rebellion six generals were assigned to a command of seven hundred soldiers, a reserve force that was moving toward the battle ground, but France hopes to work her way out of her situation with no loss of dignity.

Divorce Granted.

Nellie Hunsinger was granted a divorce in common pleas court from Jacob Hunsinger on the grounds of gross neglect. I. F. Snyder represented the plaintiff.

Sherman Wilson has been granted a divorce from Grace L. Wilson in probate court on the grounds of gross neglect and abandonment. The parties were married April 19, 1914. She told that she wished to return to a life of a single woman and earn her own living. November 1, 1923, she abandoned her husband and on January 28, 1924, they entered into a separation agreement. She was restored to her maiden name, Grace L. Mann. Barton Walters represented the plaintiff.

Charity Graham was granted a divorce from Daniel Graham in probate court on the grounds of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. The parties were married April 6, 1914, at McArthur, and are the parents of two children. The wife was given a divorce and the custody of the children. Her husband was ordered to pay her $5 a week for their support. C. A. Weldon represented the plaintiff.

Spectacles.

We are told that the ancients had no spectacles. Why Eye Shades Are Used.

The purpose of the eye shade is to shield the eye from harmful brilliances in the field of view. In lighting from poorly concealed sources these brilliances are, in many cases, 600,000 to 800,000 times as great as the brightness of the printed page. Their images, falling on the dark adapted and highly sensitized peripheral retina, cause great discomfort and interfere profoundly with the muscular adjustment of the eye needed for clear seeing.

Always Unpopular Number.

Whether unlucky or not, number 13 is thoroughly unpopular. If 13 sit down to a meal, the first to rise will die within a year, says superstition. The person born on the thirteenth of the month will be unlucky throughout life; no one should embark on a journey or start an enterprise on the thirteenth of the month; while the thirteenth house in a row is nearly always tenantless, or renumbered 11A or 15.

Conveys Idea of Meanness.

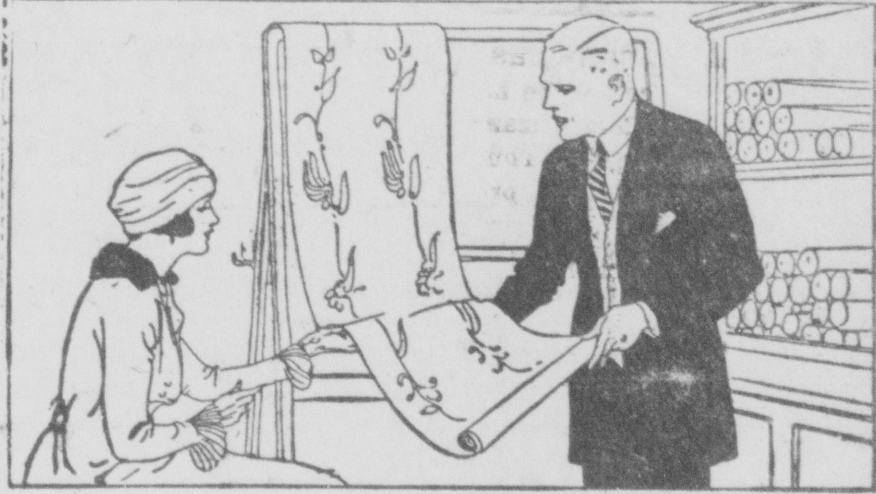

Thrifty habits of the rural New England deacon have resulted in the version of the noun and its use as a verb is well understood. To "deacon" a calf is to knock it in the head when born, hence, "deaconed" veal. To "deacon" strawberries, a custom more honored in the observance than in the breach, is to put the largest ones on top, and to "deacon" land is to extend one's fence to include a portion of the highway.

Farnum's Ton Litter New Motion Picture

Secures a Weight of 2,000 Pounds at Six Months.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Dad, did you ever raise a litter of pigs that weighed a ton when six months old?"

Dad hadn't, but he was interested in helping his son try it. What happened is shown in a new United States Department of Agriculture motion picture, "Bob Farnum's Ton Litter." To make a two-reel story short, Bob makes his goal—a litter of pigs weighing more than 2,000 pounds at the age of six months—after a battle with most of the ills that beset pork producers, such as cold, heat, and cholera. By so doing he raises a ton of hogs and gets the money therefor, wins a gold medal, learns the value of proper breeding, feeding, and care, and earns the respect of his neighbors.

The picture abounds in good hog doctrine, including the necessity of good blood in breeding animals. It was produced in Indiana, where the ton-litter idea originated, in co-operation with Purdue university. This idea, by the way, is simply the banding of men together in a contest of animal husbandry—a contest in which "you win even if you lose."

"Bob Farnum's Ton Litter" will be distributed through the educational film service of the United States Department of Agriculture and the co-operating state institutions. Copies may be borrowed for short periods, or may be bought by authorized institutions at the laboratory charge.

Satisfactory Mash for Feeding Little Chicks

A satisfactory mash mixture for feeding young chicks, as worked out at the Ohio experiment station, consists of two parts, by weight, of ground corn, three parts bran and one part fine meat scrap.

After the chicks were placed under a brooder stove equal parts, by weight, of the mash and boiled infertile egg which have been run through an ordinary food grinder, were given three times daily. This mixture was fed on paper.

Chicks are given access to a trough of dry bran after the fifth day.

Cracked corn was also fed in the morning and an hour before dark.

After the chicks were four weeks old, feeding of the mash three times daily was discontinued, but kept constantly available in hoppers and small troughs. Grain was also fed twice daily; once in the morning and once in the evening.

Young chicks are kept around a brooder stove by an inclosure made with a strip of roofing, 12 inches high, covering a radius of about 18 inches larger than the canopy of the brooder stove. This was enlarged each day but removed after the fifth day of brooding.

Comfortable Dairy Cows Will Produce More Milk

The dairy cow cannot do her best when cold. When she becomes so cold that she humps up, her milk flow is certain to be reduced for several milkings. She is affected more by low temperatures than are beef cattle. The latter have fat which acts as a blanket to keep the vital organs in normal condition. The dairy cow produces fat but it goes into the milk pail and consequently does not aid in keeping her comfortable in extremely cold weather. The cows should have exercise, but don't leave them out if they begin to hump up. When they do this it should be the signal for the stable boy to get a hump on and open the stable doors.

Pigs Should Be Crowded for Market by Feeding

Fall pigs should be crowded for market as fast as possible. Most economical gains will be made where plenty of protein is provided. Each pig should have one-half pound of tankage per head per day as a source of protein. Skimmed milk may be substituted for tankage, but it requires one gallon of skimmed milk to equal one-half pound of tankage as a source of protein. Free access to alfalfa hay in addition to tankage and grain will also help in reducing production costs.

FARM NOTES

Sudan grass is a much better cow pasture than it is a hog pasture.

Standardization will come by education, co-operation and legislation.

The most certain way of getting a perfect stand of alfalfa is to seed in August.

Proper use of the straw stack often saves much investment of capital in costly buildings.

Good-sized cows can readily consume a bushel basket of good silage at night and morning.

While figuring rations for your livestock, don't forget to figure molasses for the farm boys and girls.

The cheapest and easiest way of getting a stand of alfalfa is to seed in August.

Ancient Symbol.

The initials I. H. S., appearing on grave stones, in churches, etc., are the initial letters of the Latin phrase "Jesus Hominum Salvator," which means "Jesus the Savior of Man." This was originally written in Greek and was the first three letters of the name Jesus, but its origin was lost sight of through substituting the "S" for the Greek sign sigma. Then by mistaking the Greek H for the Latin H a significance was found for each letter.

Exhaustion Was Mental.

The golfer who was employing him was playing very badly and the caddy threw himself down on the grass at one point and watched him. When the man had at last succeeded in getting his ball out of the bunker, he glanced toward the boy and remarked: "You must be tired, lying down at this time of day." "I ain't tired of carrying," said the caddy, "but I certainly am tired of counting." — Boston Transcript.

Farnum's Ton Litter New Motion Picture

Secures a Weight of 2,000 Pounds at Six Months.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Dad, did you ever raise a litter of pigs that weighed a ton when six months old?"

Dad hadn't, but he was interested in helping his son try it. What happened is shown in a new United States Department of Agriculture motion picture, "Bob Farnum's Ton Litter." To make a two-reel story short, Bob makes his goal—a litter of pigs weighing more than 2,000 pounds at the age of six months—after a battle with most of the ills that beset pork producers, such as cold, heat, and cholera. By so doing he raises a ton of hogs and gets the money therefor, wins a gold medal, learns the value of proper breeding, feeding, and care, and earns the respect of his neighbors.

The picture abounds in good hog doctrine, including the necessity of good blood in breeding animals. It was produced in Indiana, where the ton-litter idea originated, in co-operation with Purdue university. This idea, by the way, is simply the banding of men together in a contest of animal husbandry—a contest in which "you win even if you lose."

"Bob Farnum's Ton Litter" will be distributed through the educational film service of the United States Department of Agriculture and the co-operating state institutions. Copies may be borrowed for short periods, or may be bought by authorized institutions at the laboratory charge.

Satisfactory Mash for Feeding Little Chick

A satisfactory mash mixture for feeding young chicks, as worked out at the Ohio experiment station, consists of two parts, by weight, of ground corn, three parts bran and one part fine meat scrap.

After the chicks were placed under a brooder stove equal parts, by weight, of the mash and boiled infertile eggs which have been run through an ordinary food grinder, were given three times daily. This mixture was fed on paper.

Chicks are given access to a trough of dry bran after the fifth day. Cracked corn was also fed in the morning and an hour before dark.

After the chicks were four weeks old, feeding of the mash three times daily was discontinued, but kept constantly available in hoppers and small troughs. Grain was also fed twice daily; once in the morning and once in the evening.

Young chicks are kept around a brooder stove by an inclosure made with a strip of roofing, 12 inches high, covering a radius of about 18 inches larger than the canopy of the brooder stove. This was enlarged each day but removed after the fifth day of brooding.

Comfortable Dairy Cows Will Produce More Milk

The dairy cow cannot do her best when cold. When she becomes so cold that she humps up, her milk flow is certain to be reduced for several milkings. She is affected more by low temperatures than are beef cattle. The latter have fat which acts as a blanket to keep the vital organs in normal condition. The dairy cow produces fat but it goes into the milk pail and consequently does not aid in keeping her comfortable in extremely cold weather. The cows should have exercise, but don't leave them out till they begin to hump up. When they do this it should be the signal for the stable boy to get a hump on and open the stable doors.

Pigs Should Be Crowded for Market by Feeding

Fall pigs should be crowded for market as fast as possible. Most economical gains will be made where plenty of protein is provided. Each pig should have one-half pound of tankage per head per day as a source of protein. Skimmed milk may be substituted for tankage, but it requires one gallon of skimmed milk to equal one-half pound of tankage as a source of protein. Free access to alfalfa hay in addition to tankage and grain will also help in reducing production costs.

FARM NOTES

Sudan grass is a much better cow pasture than it is a hog pasture.

Standardization will come by education, co-operation and legislation.

The most certain way of getting a perfect stand of alfalfa is to seed in August.

Proper use of the straw stack often saves much investment of capital in costly buildings.

Good-sized cows can readily consume a bushel basket of good silage night and morning.

While figuring rations for your livestock, don't forget to figure molasses for the farm boys and girls.

The cheapest and best way of getting a stand of alfalfa is to seed in August.

Ancient Symbol.

The initials I. H. S., appearing on grave stones, in churches, etc., are the initial letters of the Latin phrase "Jesus Hominum Salvator," which means "Jesus the Savior of Man." This was originally written in Greek and was the first three letters of the name Jesus, but its origin was lost sight of through substituting the "S" for the Greek sign sigma. Then by mistaking the Greek H for the Latin H a significance was found for each letter.

Exhaustion Was Mental.

The golfer who was employing him was playing very badly and the caddy threw himself down on the grass at one point and watched him. When the man had at last succeeded in getting his ball out of the bunker, he glanced toward the boy and remarked: "You must be tired, lying down at this time of day." "I ain't tired of carrying," said the caddy, "but I certainly am tired of counting." — Boston Transcript.

Care of Palms.
Palms are hardy things which may be grown in rooms for years with good results. Keep them near the window so that they may get plenty of light.
The best soil for them consists of three parts of fibrous loam, one part each of leaf mold and decayed loam, and a tenth of coarse sand. The ordinary watering rules don't apply to them; they should only be watered when the pot rings hollow under the hand, and at no other time. During mild showers, stand them out in the rain for an hour or two, as this cleans and freshens them and opens the pores of the leaves.

MOTHER'S FAITH NOT MISPLACED
By JANE GORDON
(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

MRS. BARTON was a hard-working little woman who lived in the lower part of the town. Early morning found her on her way to the village stores to trade in the fruits and vegetables which she alone cultivated in her small garden. Coming a summer guest to Lornsdale, it was Mrs. Barton who was suggested to me as likely to do my "fine" laundering. I think the word "fine" relieved her of the thought of an arduous task. When I carried my bundle to Mrs. Barton's home I found her graciously hospitable. Seldom have I been so interested in a call upon a stranger. Her voice was low and pleasing; her words precisely chosen. I returned to the home of my Lornsdale hostess seeking information about the bent little lady.

"Has Mrs. Barton lived here long?"
I asked Mrs. Trent.

"Since her marriage," my friend replied. "She came, a disapproved bride, to the home of Lornsdale's oldest family. Disapproved because the last of the Bartons had married an orphaned girl, none of them knew.

"Dennison took the small cottage down by the station, and, inheriting his father's weak constitution, did not live long. The young wife, for whom he had never been properly able to provide, was left with a young Dennison to support.

"But now Denny is strong and handsome! My dear! you should see him;
it would be difficult for you to consider the relationship of the carefree, handsome Denny with the plain old woman with the gnarled hands. Deprivation and anxiety have made Ann Barton old before her time. I sometimes tremble for Ann; her faith in that graceless son of hers is almost sublime.
'He will repay,' she will tell you, her tired eyes alight for the moment in happy anticipation.

"And Denny? I met him on the street one day and took it upon myself to say, 'Dennison, don't you think it would be more manly for you to obtain some humble work now and help your mother, instead of waiting for a late profession.' His smile really took away my prejudice.

"This is the better way," he returned without rancor. 'Mother and I have talked it out. A little longer and I may be able to do for her, as I could never do, postponing the time here.'

"Mrs. Barton showed me Denny's picture when next I made my necessary visit. He was a handsome man with a sort of dignity, which his mother eagerly assured me, was 'like the Bartons all over again.' She 'died up my organdie that week as a little extra help to Denny.

"As I sat on the porch one afternoon my hostess came hurrying toward me. 'Martha!' she exclaimed,
'that Denny Barton has married—married some frilly co-ed of a girl and left his mother in the lurch. Effort wasted as far as her promised future support is concerned. Ann Barton will have to go on supporting herself—and her son from her—forever. Of course he won't bring his bride here.
How he will manage to care for her any place no one knows.'

"I went to see Ann Barton, dreading
the disillusionment in her patient eyes.
But there was no disillusionment there.
Mrs. Trent had truly said that the mother's faith was sublime.

"Come in," she softly invited. 'I want to tell you about Denny—he is married. My big boy, Denny! It don't seem possible. Why, only yesterday he was laughing about falling in love with a girl. 'You'll be always my girl, mother,' said Denny. They didn't mean to marry so soon; but there was she, going away to her home, and Denny, with the teaching position offered him, right in the college. 'We'll marry, Gloria,' he says—and isn't that a fancy name for a girl?—and then, we'll send for mother to come on to us. Ain't that like Denny? Wanting first thing to fetch his shabby mother right to the college town, where all his learned friends are. But I'll tell you—' Ann Barton leaned close with her confidence—'I'm not going to make them think less of him, as they might—I never was able much to go to school.
So I'll pretend a longing to stay in the cottage here and go on as I've been going. I've no doubt that some day Denny and his pretty Gloria will be the high ones in that college town.
I'll be sending them fresh vegetables and'—The mother stopped to listen to a knock, as she furtively wiped away her tears. 'If you'd open the door for a bit,' she begged. Ann went into her bedroom to remove the sign of emotion. A modish, pretty young woman stood in the portico. Instinctively I knew this to be Denny's new wife.
Closing the door behind me I waited to greet her there."

"I came," she said slowly, "to see Mrs. Barton. You cannot be Mrs. Barton? Denny has so described his mother to me I can see her, in fancy. I am Denny Barton's wife. I came—to see our mother."

A great thrill of relief passed over me. It was the gentle awe in the girl's tone which made me understand.
His mother's faith in Denny was not misplaced. With his own deep affection had he inspired this young wife seeking "our mother." Impulsively I put out my hand to the pretty creature in the modish frock. "I wish you happiness," I said, "happiness that I hope you may share with your husband's mother."

The girl's blue eyes were gravely sincere. "That," she replied, "is what we are both longing to do."

But I'll tell you—' Ann Barton leaned close with her confidence—I'm not going to make them think less of him, as they might—I never was able much to go to school. So I'll pretend a longing to stay in the cottage here and go on as I've been going. I've no doubt that some day Denny and his pretty Gloria will be the high ones in that college town. I'll be sending them fresh vegetables and—'. The mother stopped to listen to a knock, as she furtively wiped away her tears. 'If you'd open the door for a bit,' she begged. Ann went into her bedroom to remove the sign of emotion. A modish, pretty young woman stood in the portico. Instinctively I knew this to be Denny's new wife. Closing the door behind me I waited to greet her there."

"I came," she said slowly, "to see Mrs. Barton. You cannot be Mrs. Barton? Denny has so described his mother to me I can see her, in fancy. I am Denny Barton's wife. I came—to see our mother."

A great thrill of relief passed over me. It was the gentle awe in the girl's tone which made me understand. His mother's faith in Denny was not misplaced. With his own deep affection had he inspired this young wife seeking "our mother." Impulsively I put out my hand to the pretty creature in the modish frock. "I wish you happiness," I said, "happiness that I hope you may share with your husband's mother."

The girl's blue eyes were gravely sincere. "That," she replied, "is what we are both longing to do."

Choice of Subject.
Invention in painting does not imply the invention of the subject, for that is commonly supplied by the poet or historian. With respect to the choice, no subject can be proper that is not generally interesting. . . . There must be something, either in the action or in the object, in which men are universally concerned, and which powerfully strikes upon the public sympathy.—By Sir Joshua Reynolds.

ROUTE SIGNS

Highway Department Will Paint Poles White to Height of Eight Feet.

Work of repainting all route signs along the highways of the state, as well as all telephone and telegraph poles has been started by the highway department. These poles are to be made to serve as safety signals as well as their original purpose. They will be painted white to a height of eight feet. This is expected to reduce the danger of night driving as the rows of white poles along the road will be plainly visible. Ends of bridges, guard rails and other structures that might cause auto accidents will also be painted white. Several offers have been made as low as $10 per mile for whitewashing the poles along the public highways. This is part of the prevention of accident work that is being carried on at the present time by the highway department.

TSETSE FLY HOLDS BACK DEVELOPMENT

Insect Gets Poison From Antelope.

Washington. — The assertion that has recently come from Germany that the German Colonial society has a successful remedy for the hitherto incurable "sleeping sickness" of tropical Africa, but will not make it known unless Germany's prewar colonies are restored, turns attention to one of the most dreaded of known maladies.

"It is hardly too much to say that the sleeping sickness, and the tsetse fly which plays an important part in causing it, have done more than mountain ranges, mighty rivers and most other natural features to affect, divert and hold back development in central Africa," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The Boer and British settlers of South Africa had no tsetse problem," continues the bulletin, "until their pioneers had pushed on up toward the tropics. Then their cattle, bitten by flies, sickened and died. With the further opening up of the hot country the tsetse fly was introduced to the world as a tiny insect more destructive of domestic cattle than the lions that operate in some of the same territory.

Caused Sleeping Sickness.

"When Europeans came into contact with the tsetse fly in some of the more southern 'fly belts' his destructiveness seemed confined to their cattle. Flies in those regions inflicted painful bites on men, but that was the end of it. Closer to the equator a much more sinister side of the fly became apparent when it was found that the seemingly always fatal sleeping sickness of humans in those sections followed the bites of the flies as did the death of domestic animals. The entire future of the tropical African colonies of the various European powers was seen to hang on the possibility of combating the sleeping sickness; for with the greater freedom of movement stimulated by the advance of civilization, the disease spread from its local centers and threatened to wipe out the entire population of countries.

"In the years just preceding the World war British, German, French, Belgian, Portuguese and Italian scientists were busy in Africa seeking to learn more about the tsetse fly and the disease, and to find ways of combating them. But though the development and transmission of the disease came to be known in detail, none of the investigators has claimed to discover any successful remedy, save the Germans.

"The investigations that disclosed the complicated plan by which nature keeps the microscopic organisms of the sleeping sickness alive and injects them into human victims makes a fascinating chapter of science despite the dark side of the picture.

"It was found that there must be a large animal whose blood is of the proper sort to constitute a 'reservoir' for the organisms. If this 'reservoir' is 'tapped' by a tsetse fly the organisms drawn out undergo a slight change in the fly's intestines and glands and are injected as though through a hypodermic syringe when later the fly bites a similar animal or a human. It was thought at first that a succession of ill human victims furnished the reservoirs; but all humans on certain infested islands were transported, and still the flies were able to transmit the disease several years later. Crocodiles were popularly suspected of being the 'reservoirs,' but it was proved that the disease could not be transmitted from their blood.

"Finally, by patient research, the fact was run down that a certain species of antelope—the situnga—is the guilty animal. Though he remains perfectly healthy himself, his blood may contain millions of the organisms fatal to man. The fly, imbibing his daily diet of blood from the infested situnga, sucks in the organisms, and in turn receives all ill-effects from them. But when he bites a man, he deals out deadly poison. As far as man is concerned, antelope or fly would each be entirely harmless without the other.

Many Areas Evacuated.

"Though it is almost impossible to exterminate either the antelope or the tsetse in central Africa—a step that might wipe out the disease—it was possible, after their dangerous relationship came to be understood, to take certain steps to better conditions. This was made possible by the fact that the flies have restricted breeding grounds along the shores of lakes and streams. Many of these areas were evacuated much against the wishes of the natives, and abandoned to the flies. The result has been a marked decrease in the number of cases of sleeping sickness in recent years. In the abandoned areas, however, both the flies and antelopes remain, and keep alive the fatal disease organisms. If a human ventures into the regions he is very likely to become infected.

"One interesting fact developed in a most interesting way by British naturalists who studied the tsetse fly problem, is that the flies are relatively long-lived. They live about a year and, once harboring the disease organism, preserve their power of infection to the end. The approximate life span of the flies when free was determined by patiently catching thousands of them, marking their legs, much as a cattleman 'ear-marks' his animals, and releasing them. At intervals later thousands of flies were captured in the same locality. The marked individuals continued to appear among the captives, healthy and active, for the better part of a year."

CREAM MARKET

Producers of Pickaway County Will Complete an Organization

At a meeting held in the Farm Bureau office Saturday afternoon, March 29, farmers from all over Pickaway county representing approximately one hundred and fifty cream producers organized the Pickaway County Cream Marketing association, which will shortly begin to function as a cooperative marketing agency. The officers and executive committee who were elected to direct the affairs of the association are: President, Wilson S. Dunkel, Stoutsville; vice president, A. M. Peters, Ashville; secretary-treasurer, Floyd Warner, Williamsport; advisory councilmen, Clay Hitler, Circleville; Charles T. Hay and John W. Hay, Ashville. These directors will start immediately to work out the details for the handling of cream. Truck routes will be established in different parts of the county, gathering the cream from the farms and assembling it to a central station in Circleville, where it will be weighed and tested by a manager who is hired direct by the producers.

There are at the present time seventy-seven cooperative cream stations in existence in Ohio and these cream stations have been largely responsible for an increase in prices paid to producers for butter fat in Ohio over that in western states.

The newly elected directors of the association will have their first meeting in the Farm bureau office Thursday evening, April 3.

The most beautiful of all human relationships are based on CONFIDENCE. CONFIDENCE

The most beautiful of all human relationships are based on CONFIDENCE. Love is based on confidence, friendship is based on confidence, happy marriages are based on confidence; and so, confidence is the highest aim a business institution can achieve, because it introduces into the processes of buying and selling, something of the unselfish quality of those sacred human relationships that are untouched and uncontaminated by money. This store never wants to be guilty of such bad taste as to claim perfection, but it makes no secret of its ambition to foster and deserve at all times the confidence of its customers.

There is no higher success than TO BE BELIEVED IN!
